

Imagery on screen: An oak statue of a female figure which represents the 'Keeper of the Dunes' and which stands among dunes.

Female narrator: I am a place that is always in between,
Half a life barren land, half a life green.
I am a skin that grows beneath your feet,
A hidden spot where newts lurk and sand flies meet.

I am a mirage on the maps of men,
Labelled on parchment, recorded in pen,
A shape-shifting landscape breaking all the rules,
A bracelet of sand, flowering with jewels.

I am more than all my parts, notes upon the breeze,
A symphony of marram grass, a warbler's sneeze.
I am an orchestra in a sea of tunes.
Listen to the melody, for I am the dunes."
